FAQ

You have been given some good information by, Bayley Property Services & N Louth Plastering, I would take all render of as, if you patched it, it would always show no matter how good the plasterer is.. Personally sand cement render with a touch of lime added is as good as anything its cheaper but you will need to paint it after say with a sandtex paint which is micro porous, this lets the wall breathe thus stopping it from cracking and allowing movement hence why we add lime.

As for price your looking at an average of about £16 to £20 per sq meter Hi There are a few things to look for, Are the cracks all joined together? When u tap the render where it is cracked does it sound hollow? If the answer to the above is yes then it will probably need to be removed as it is not adhered to the substrate (background) This is due to a number of things The background was not prepared properly ie not dampened down, no PVA applied, mortar joints not raked out etc, It was applied in too warm a condition so it dried to quickly or applied in too cold condition and the frost effected the curing and subsequently caused the cement to fail and hence has no strength.

Can these be repaired or do we need to replace the render? How much is a job like that likely to cost (2 storey, semi detached double fronted house approx 12 meters wide) - ballpark figures would be helpful - I don't even know if it's hundreds or thousands! Also as slightly stupid question but is render coloured? The house is a cream colour and it doesn't look like it's been painted as there is no flaking - or could it be some alternative coating has been used (it's smooth not rough) Thanks for any advice you can offer.. Get at least 3 prices, there are some good renderers about The render on your house has cracked due to a number of reasons, it could of been done in poor weather, or not enough mechanical key.. There are new polymer through colour renders that are out on the market that are normally applied in one coat which are pre coloured and once they have been floated and has set is the finished product they are normally applied with plastic coloured angle and stop beads to match the colour of the render hope this helps Regards Tom Lyon. Office xp pro japanese Tecgrip CAS Cartridge Polyester resin-based high strength anchor system for the bonding of fixings in horizontal or verticals holes and for a wide variety of anchoring applications including the fixing of dowels, studding, starter bars, brackets, plaques, street art, etc.. In my experience you can take of the damaged parts and patch in, but personally I would take it all off and start again, making sure that a good key is achieved in the scratch coat (1st coat of render).. If you are after color render you could have it done in K-rend or monochouche these are a re pre mixed render similar to plaster and can be in applied in either by hand or by machine.. I would use a SBR slurry and paint on wall prior to applying the scratch coat
Render Crack Repair ResinDone one similar to this not long ago, 2days hacking of, 2&1 gang rendering 3days, 3 coats masonry paint cost approx £2300 The scaffold was £360 but varies in different areas.. Over the past couple of years I've notice more cracks appear in the surface across the house.. Microsoft Office 2010 featured a new logo, which resembled the 2007 logo, except in gold, and with a modification in shape. ae05505a44 Sonic before the sequel online
